"As far as Verlin and Doran Grimes knew there was never any water in the depression or hole at the top of Reservoir Hill in Three Pines. There was an old six to eight inch wooden water pipeline that came west down from the top of Reservoir Hill behind the north side of the Grimes house. It was held together with wire on the outside and coated with tar, but as far as anyone knows it was not ever used. It was surmised that the plan was to eventually use the water from the flume to fill the reservoir, but the plan never came to fruition."¹
